Gur railroads run everywhere; our. we' nig t expansions resources, save been moacheu in a thousand cirections; we count the increase of our adomation by mi tions; the emigrations;o fine work at move towards use coteges, Charchès, and soboo - iduses have gone up with the building of the States, and the States fremse ves are mustiplied so rapidly that not one; in den knows gractly sow many are in the Union. A. this is true; but caring the past twenty-rive: years we judge that we have made not improvement in the typica. American gent email. The o c men mit i their preecessand knee-buckless and cocked lass rough have when in upon the President and his chosen riches at king Branch ast Summer, we are inclined to think the latter would have been a good deal em mirassec with the situation. They could have wake i through the plazzas of he Grand finding at Sara oga, now many er us is would they have met? ... how many men who in manners, cignityl culture, and spirit would have eit at some with them? the old type of merchants, the old type of statesmen the o'd type of gentlemen sure y we have not im moved upon these. W restless, greecy, grassing, time serving spirit for our meneration has viliated and degraded tire type, and in our the past on our moders.

Cities are subplementary; institutions. There, What shall we say about the old type of women of the Remaile -have we improved upon them? Have the latter day doctrines of woman's rights mace them more mocest, more se denying, > receoned in character. It us is not sat sfactory, nothing is satisfactory. I we are not rearing better chi bren and ripening better men and women than we were a century ago, then sometinng is racically wrong, and the cure er we retrace our sie is to see where we have iniverged from the right trace, the better. The typical American-man, woman, and chile and the rearesentative product of a the institutions and inl uences of our civi ization. As the type improves or degenerates, co these indutations and insuences stand a proved or coacemned before the wor'd. Progress cannot be rectoned in railroads and steam boats, or counted in money, or decided in any way by the census tasses. Are we procueing witer conferen and hotter men and women? Last isit re question which accides every. thing; am we have called attention to the obtypes in order that we may arrive at an intelligent conclusion. -- Seribner :.
